5. APPROPRIATE ASSESSMENT (AA)

The subject site is located 1.23km from SAC 000571-Charleville Woods.

Having regard to whether use of the subject premises as a residence for International Protection Applicants constitutes development and whether, if it does, it can be considered exempted development at 14 Kilbridge Street, Tullamore, R35 V880 and due to a lack of any pathway to a European site it is considered that the proposed development would not be likely to have a significant effect individually, or in-combination with other plans and projects, on the Natura 2000 network and appropriate assessment is not therefore required.

6. EIA SCREENING:

No Screening required, see appendix A attached.

7. OTHER SCREENING:

The proposed development is not contrary to the RSES and so it was not referred to the Eastern and Midland Regional Assembly

8. PLANNING ASSESSMENT

It is considered that this Section 5 declaration is best assessed initially under the provisions of Section 3 (1) of the Planning and Development Act 2000 (as amended).

It is noted that Class 14 and 20F would need be considered where there is "development consisting of a change of use".

However, the initial question is whether the premises being used by those seeking international protection constitutes development.

Do the works constitute development?

Assessment will be made under Section 3(1) of the Planning and Development Act 2000 (as amended), which states “development” means except where the context otherwise requires the carrying out of any works, on, in, over or under land or making any material change in the use of any structures or other land.

It is noted that no physical works to the subject dwelling are proposed or were carried out to facilitate the use of the dwelling by international protection applicants.

It is noted that the property is currently occupied by a family of international protection applicants at present. The details submitted states that the accommodation is used for residential purposes and are not used and will not be used for reception or administrative centre purposes. This is an important consideration, in that the details specify a ‘family’ as opposed to say multiple occupancy. This will therefore form part of the material considerations in the recommended decision.

The application informs that the accommodation is provided for international protection applicants on a 6-18 months basis through a Government Department contracted, with Didean’s staff providing visiting services/support where required.

The details provided states that on an occasional basis these visiting services/support provided by the applicant for c.3 hours per week, such support includes arranging school places, sourcing doctors, medical card applications, IP Applicant Services appointments to occupants of the dwelling, etc.

It is noted that no staff are based in the property, the applicant considers that “the services are provided on a visiting basis and would be no different to care being delivered to a traditional domestic setting, for example, for elderly or infirm occupants of a dwelling”.

The question is whether this use of the dwelling constitutes either an intensification of the existing permitted use, or constitutes a material change of use.

Having reviewed the details, it is noted that the dwelling has planning permission to be used for residential purposes. The occupants are using the dwelling for the same residential purposes, for which permission was granted.

Further regard has been given as to whether the provision of support services by way of a visitation c. 3 hours a week would amount to a material change of use. It is considered that due to the low level of service supports provided, in addition to the fact that the dwelling is not used for reception or administrative centre and it does not have a reception/lobby area, that the use of the dwelling would be of similar character and intensity to that which was permitted and accordingly, it is considered that it would not result in a material change of use. Therefore, there is no contravention of a planning permission condition as per Article 9 of the Planning and Development Regulations 2001 (as amended). This section 5 referral is not considered to consist of development as prescribed under Section 3 of the Planning and Development Act 2000 (as amended).

Accordingly, as no material change of use has occurred this referral does not constitute development, therefore there is not a requirement to consider it further under Class 14 or Class 20F of the Planning and Development Regulations 2001 (as amended).

7. Conclusion

It is considered that the the subject premises at 14 Kilbride Street, Tullamore, R35 V880 as a residence for International Protection Applicants does not constitute development as defined under Section 2(1) of the Planning & Development Act 2000 as amended.
